

COOL PLACES IN MY TOWN

created 3/17/24

So, I'm going to start this list, mostly because I'd like people to explore these places, they're pretty cool and they deserve the fame, regardless of what they're famous for.

I will be writing in Green. and comic sans. MS to be exact.

The Karakahl Country Inn, this place...is disgusting, blood on the sheets from the reviews, smells like ciggarettes. But the building is abandoned now, and I LOVE abandoned places, I wen't inside a few times but, as of now the building is locked, awaiting demolishing until the owner actually gives the place up. Front with the pool room looks kind of like the Whittaker Middleschool Entrance in Elephant 2003. The building again, is gross, outdated, with 1990s style, but honestly liminal I guess.

Next up I guess we can put the Hearts and Hands, my first official school. Hated it there, absolutely hated it, centipedes in some classrooms, weird dolls that had PPs I think, but other than that it's cool. Hated the lunch because they literally gave us a single salami slab, NO PLATE I KID YOU NOT. Was super young but I have a lot of memories, the playground, the tree thing we went on a "field trip" to once. And even leaving school to go paint the deck at 104 sandy court. My old house.

So this topic I don't really want to go TOO far, but I'm going to list every home I've lived in, I have moved A LOT, but surprisingly only been to two School Districts. You know, it's weird how as some random kid, no one cares about the spectacles of your life, but when you're famous, maybe infamous, you get turned into North America as Columbus saw it. Exploring the urethra of my life, I guess I understand. No I don't mind.

PREVIOUS HOMES BY RECENT ORDER:

1812 Fjord pass, MT HOREB (NOTE: current and last)

104 Sandy, MT HOREB

203 South First Street, MT HOREB (nice fireplace)

302 Meadow View Road, MT HOREB (this was a 1-1.5 month short stay while in House change)

115 5th Street, MINERAL POINT (Gross house but my time in that town was BEAUTIFUL)

6393 Everest Drive, FITCHBURG (Only lived there .8 years, drove to Mt Horeb for school, then lived there all summer before Mineral Point)

302 Meadow View road, (longest stay, 2015-2017, slightly more days than 2009-2011)

104 Sandy Court, (Probably my longest house stay, 5 years at least)

302 Meadow View Road (First house I ever lived in, 2009-2011)

I've got to say, 302 Meadow View was the most beautiful, I loved visiting my grandparents, taking the bus to elementary school at the PC, it had a nice, finished basement, I loved the little hideaway beneath the stairs, used to be a small pine forest in the back yard, we grew asparagus as well in the garden in the back. The pond I have so many memories of standing on its' ice, destroying it and such. Falling in once LMAO. The house is sold as of now, I don't know what work they must have done to it. A fence has been added. There was a nice playground in the backyard, we also had a makeshift treehouse in a small tree plot by the left road, looking north. The playground was awesome, torn down shortly before my Grandparents moved, all that's left is the tree next to it. I loved watching cartoons in that basement, I really hope people can have fun childhood memories as I did in that basement, but with the iPad kid tragedy, I guess everyone's childhood is untouchable.

Sandy Court was a nice house, but very crappy, made in 2010-ish? It was falling apart, walls were crappy, carpet gross. Basement was cool, I have memories there, the back yard too, I have a swing in the tree that the current owners STILL have hanging in the tree. I wonder how long it'll be there. It also has a mini-fir forest by the left-hand neighbors looking north.

I have a LOT of memories going to my towns frolic, bring some of that fricking funnel cake to my grave for real. Eli baba, or the now-called, Rockstar, is SUPER fun to ride, I love the fighter jet feeling. I kind of dislike going to public places without large groups of friends to be honest. I have BAD agoraphobia.

I'm not going to link the location cuz I'm too lazy but I remember playing in the river at the Richland Center HS, watching my brothers Soccer games. I thought about it last night and had a dream about it for some reason.
